

Newhaven Neighbourhood Development Plan

Voting Information for Referendum on 10th October 2019

Lewes District Council

South Downs
National Park Authority

Introduction

A referendum will be held in Newhaven on Thursday, 10th October 2019 asking eligible voters whether the Newhaven Neighbourhood Development Plan should be used by Lewes District Council and the South Downs National Park Authority to decide planning applications.

We are required to produce “a statement that sets out general information as to town and country planning (including neighbourhood planning) and the referendum”. This document has been produced to meet this requirement.

This document provides:

- Information about the planning system
- Information about the referendum
- Information stating where more details relating to the Newhaven Neighbourhood Development Plan can be found.

Information about the planning system

As is made clear in legislation, most development requires consent, known as planning permission, to go ahead. This is usually done by submitting a planning application to a local planning authority, which decides whether to approve or refuse a planning application. Local planning authorities use planning policies, whether they are produced at a national, local or neighbourhood level, to make such decisions.

In Newhaven, Lewes District Council and the South Downs National Park Authority are the local planning authorities that decide planning applications. Part of Newhaven is located within the South Downs National Park; therefore the South Downs National Park Authority is the local planning authority that decides planning applications in that area. Whereas, Lewes District Council is the planning authority for the remainder of the parish (located outside of the Park).

National Policy

National planning policy is contained in the National Planning Policy Framework, commonly referred to as the NPPF, as well as other related documents. The NPPF sets out policy on a range of different topic areas to aid in the determination of planning applications and ensure that development contributes to the achievement of sustainable development.

The NPPF sets out policy to local planning authorities regarding the production of Local Plans and makes clear that local policies should be consistent with the NPPF. It also contains relevant policy and advice to local communities that undertake neighbourhood planning.

Local Policy

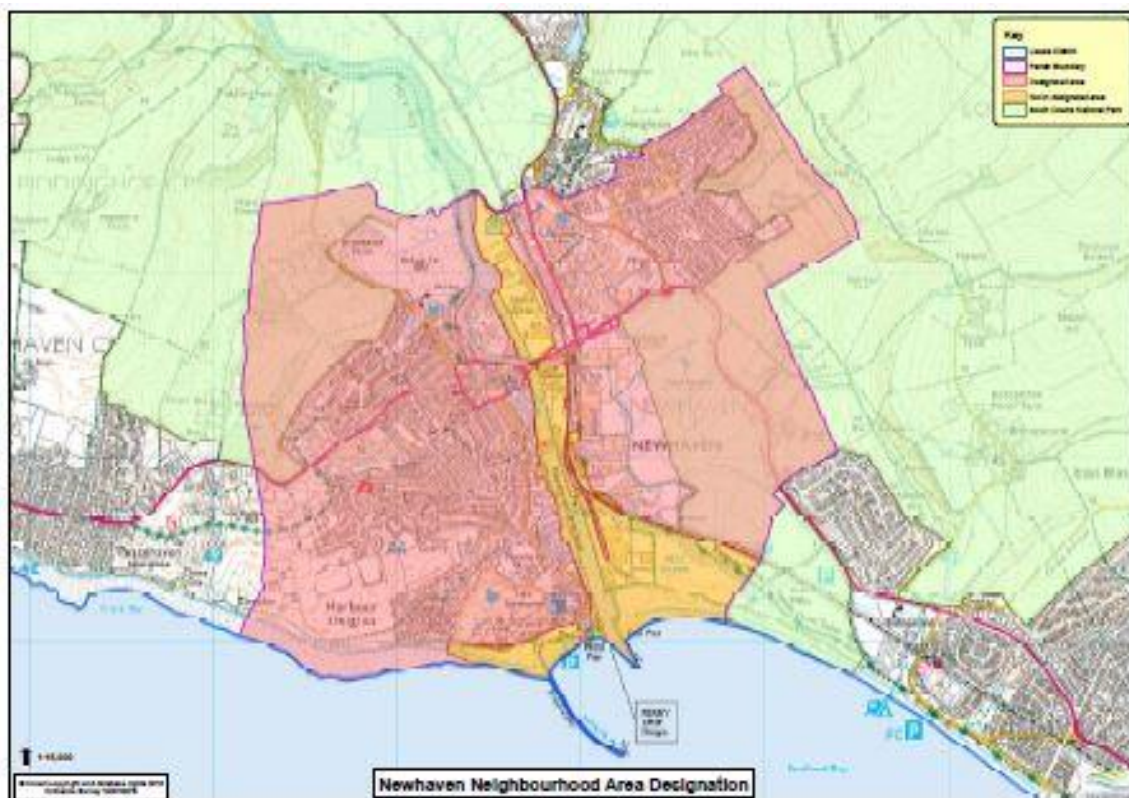

Local planning authorities produce Local Plans to introduce policies to guide development within their area. For Lewes, the current Local Plan is the Local Plan Part 1 (the Joint Core Strategy), adopted 11 May 2016 by Lewes District Council and 23 June 2016 by the South Downs National Park Authority¹, and the emerging Local Plan Part 2, which allocates land for different types of development as well as land to be protected. This document also sets out detailed development management policies and reviewed retained 'saved' 2003 Lewes District Local Plan policies to establish which policies were appropriate to take forward.

The policies within the Local Plan Part 1 and 2 are consistent with the NPPF and are currently used to determine planning applications.

The South Downs National Park Authority adopted the South Downs Local Plan in July 2019 which replaces the existing planning policies operating across the South Downs National Park.

Neighbourhood Planning

The Localism Act and subsequent Neighbourhood Planning Regulations allow communities to guide and shape development in their locality by undertaking neighbourhood planning. The most common neighbourhood planning tool is the neighbourhood development plan, usually known as a neighbourhood plan. A neighbourhood plan contains specific policies relating to land use and development within a particular area, usually parish or town, which has been designated as a neighbourhood area. Newhaven has been designated as a neighbourhood area. This is shown in the map below.

A neighbourhood plan follows a statutory process that ensures that members of the local community, as well as relevant organisations, have the opportunity to influence the development of the plan. The plan is then subject to an Examination whereby an Independent Examiner reviews the neighbourhood plan and associated material against statutory requirements known as basic conditions and then writes a report (which may include modifications) recommending whether it should proceed to a referendum.

The local planning authorities then decide whether to accept the Examiner's recommendations and whether to put the neighbourhood plan to a referendum.

Newhaven Town Council has prepared a Neighbourhood Development Plan that has been through the relevant statutory processes and subject to an Examination by an Independent Examiner and, with modifications, has been recommended to proceed to referendum.

Information about the referendum

The referendum will be conducted based on procedures which are similar to those used at local government elections. The referendum asks eligible voters the following question:

‘Do you want Lewes District Council and the South Downs National Park Authority to use the neighbourhood development plan for Newhaven to help them decide planning applications in the neighbourhood area?’

Voters will be asked to mark a cross (X) in either the ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ box on a ballot paper to indicate their preference. Should more than half of those voting at the referendum vote in favour of the neighbourhood plan, then Lewes District Council and the South Downs Park Authority should ‘make’ the neighbourhood plan at the earliest opportunity and use it to determine planning applications.
